

ELENA - The Red Cross nurse

« have my whole body tattooed. I like writing and drawing the good and bad moments of my life on my skin. I got this tattoo when my adoptive mother was dying and I had just applied to the court to find out the identity of my biological mother.» (Photo: Cristiano Bonassera)

MY STORY ON THE SKIN Permanent traces on the body that tell the origins, identity, and belonging of those who experience foster care and adoption
